

ABOUT US

Writing: Mary Collins, www.marycollinswriter.net, penmary@aol.com

Mary Collins is an Associate Professor of Creative Nonfiction at Central Connecticut State University. Prior to coming to CCSU in 2007, Professor Collins worked for 20 years in Washington, D.C. as a freelance writer and editor for a range of clients, including National Geographic, the Smithsonian and Discovery Channel. Her work has received many national awards, including the Grand Prize for Nonfiction at the Indie Book Awards in New York City in 2010 for her latest nonfiction book American Idle: A Journey Through Our Sedentary Culture. A veteran public speaker, she has traveled the country as a guest author, writing workshop leader

Maps, Tour Routes, Historical Research: Sal Lilienthal

Explore@RevolutionaryBattles.com www.BICYCLETOURCOMPANY.com 860-309-1449

Sal Lilienthal founded The Bicycle Tour Company in 1997 and has led thousands of tours all over North America and Europe for more than 20,000 clients. His business has been featured in The Boston Globe, Hartford Courant, Connecticut Magazine and elsewhere. He is also the author of The American Revolution Travel Guide, which features 25 tours outlining the conflict's major battles from Quebec to Savannah. In the last two decades, he designed and created the Western New England Greenway, a bike trail connecting New York City to Montreal through Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont and the Ethan Allen and the Green Mountain Boys National Heritage Corridor.

